

*Ninety-Five: Meeting
America's Farmed Animals in Stories and Photographs*

January, 2010

"Profoundly evocative and entirely to the point, Ninety-Five will leave readers forever changed."

– Rory Freedman, #1 NY Times best selling author, Skinny Bitch

"If the eyes really are the window into the soul, this book surely has you glimpsing the Beloved. The loveliness and resilience of these creatures never ceases to humble me."

– Kathy Freson, author of Quantum Wellness

"One of the most beautiful books I have ever seen, in every respect: the photographs, the loving stories, the philosophy behind the stories, the delightful tales, the sheer exuberance of the animals and their human companions – it is a perfect book! ... Captures something missing from almost all other books about farmed animals. There is so much heart in this book, to rival the heart that the animals themselves display."

– Jeffrey Moussaieff Masson, author of When Elephants Weep, The Pig Who Sang to the Moon, and The Face on Your Plate

"How amazing it is to learn from this most extraordinary book just how beautiful chickens, turkeys, pigs, cows and other farm animals can be. This is a rare and life-changing book. It evokes a sense of wonder, joy and awe, and a recognition of how interwoven we are with all of life."

– John Robbins, author of The New Good Life and Diet for a New America
